The Vision

Why For Freedom International?

For Freedom International (FFI) aims to provide long-term, sustainable support system for women, children, and youth victimized by and at risk of exploitation and trafficking in Thailand.

The Plan

What We're Building

This proposed center will offer a safe and nurturing environment, including two safe houses, a vocational training center, a child forensic interview facility, an office building, and a communal area set in a tranquil, green environment. This center will meet government regulations and ensure safety, legal assistance, and holistic care for victims.

The need for these facilities is especially pressing in southern Thailand, where there are limited resources for victims of trafficking and exploitation.

Case Statement

The ministry impact of the proposed Shelter and Support Center for Exploited Women, Children, and Youth in Thailand could be profound and multifaceted, touching several key areas and would significantly expand the current capacity and impact of the ministry, addressing several critical challenges faced by the existing facilities.

Immediate Rescue and Care for Vulnerable Victims
The center would serve as a safe haven for victims of human trafficking and exploitation, offering immediate refuge to those rescued from dangerous situations. This secure environment would provide 24-hour care, legal assistance, trauma-informed counseling, and medical evaluations. The facility would provide services for vulnerable groups, such as boys who are often overlooked in trafficking cases. With separate safe houses for boys and girls, the center ensures that all victims have access to care tailored to their unique needs.

Holistic Healing and Restoration
Victims will undergo not only physical and psychological healing through professional support services but will also have the opportunity to engage with Christian discipleship programs, fostering spiritual recovery. This holistic approach is critical for long-term rehabilitation. By addressing trauma and fostering healing, the center could help victims break free from the cycles of abuse and exploitation, empowering them to live restored lives in freedom through the power of Christ.

Empowering Victims through Vocational Training
The vocational training center will equip victims with practical skills (bakery, kitchen, hairdressing, computer programming), enabling them to gain employment and become financially independent. This practical step is vital for reintegrating into society and preventing re-exploitation. The vocational programs will provide structure, purpose, and skill- building, helping individuals regain self-confidence and a sense of worth, which is crucial for long-term recovery.

Long-Term Social Impact
By providing comprehensive care and rehabilitation, the center will help dismantle societal stigmas associated with trafficking and exploitation. The community awareness programs can further educate and mobilize local populations to support victims. Empowered through education and discipleship, many survivors could become advocates for change in their communities, helping others avoid similar traps of exploitation and even becoming Christian leaders who positively influence others.

Sustainable Ministry Growth
The assembly hall and training programs provide opportunities for the foundation to generate revenue by offering rental services and hosting events, which can help the ministry become more financially sustainable. The center will serve as a visible demonstration of Christ's love and compassion for the oppressed, creating opportunities for the broader community to encounter the gospel message. Through community programs and partnerships, the ministry will extend its impact beyond the victims to the wider region.

Strengthening the Local Church
As the foundation integrates spiritual care into its rehabilitation programs, it could also strengthen the local church by creating opportunities for discipleship and mentorship among survivors. By involving local churches and Christian leaders in the project, the ministry can create long-lasting partnerships that deepen the church's involvement in justice work, providing ongoing spiritual support for survivors and local communities.

Global Example and Advocacy
This project could serve as a model for similar initiatives across Thailand and other regions, demonstrating effective methods of holistic care, vocational training, and spiritual rehabilitation. A successful center could inspire further investment and partnerships from international donors and NGOs who share a passion for justice and human dignity.

Case Statement

Impact of the New Center

Increased Capacity
The proposed center will be able to host up to 24 victims at a time (12 boys and 12 girls) in two safe houses, more than doubling the current capacity. This expanded reach allows the ministry to help more victims, including boys, who currently have very limited support options.

Stable, Permanent Facilities
By owning the land and buildings, the ministry will no longer face the uncertainty of rental contracts, eliminating the risk of sudden displacement and the high cost of leasing space. This stability enables long-term planning and sustained growth.

Comprehensive Ministry Engagement
The new center will provide ample space for engaging with children and youth outside of schools, allowing the ministry to deepen its discipleship programs and holistic support efforts. The facility's design, including the vocational training center and recreational areas, will enable continuous ministry work on-site.

Healing Environment
The new center is designed with a "park-like" atmosphere, featuring greenery, fishponds, and gardens to foster a calming, therapeutic environment that promotes physical, mental, and spiritual healing. Unlike the current office-like setting, this tranquil space will significantly enhance the recovery process for victims of trauma.

Recreational and Exercise Facilities
The proposed center includes dedicated recreational spaces, such as gardens, a sports area, and outdoor activity spaces. These facilities will provide victims with immediate access to relaxation and exercise, essential for both physical health and mental well-being, without the need to travel outside the center.

Enhanced Safety
Situated in a more secluded location, the new center will provide a safer environment for victims. Security measures, including 24-hour guards, CCTV surveillance, and a controlled, secure setting, will create a protective space that shields victims from external dangers and ensures their privacy and peace of mind.

The center has the potential to not only rescue and restore the lives of individual victims but also to influence entire communities, strengthen the local church, and establish a sustainable and replicable model of holistic care and Christian ministry. Through this comprehensive ministry approach, victims can find healing, freedom, and empowerment, ultimately leading to transformed lives and communities aligning with our vision statement "breaking chains of oppression so that people have an opportunity to encounter Christ, live in freedom and change the world"
